VOCABULARY

of words unlike modern French in meaning or spelling

As a result of parallel development from late Latin, many Guernsey words have an affinity with words of similar meaning in other Latin languages. For interest these are indicated as follows:—

L. Latin, I. Italian, C. Catalan, S. Spanish, P. Portuguese, R. Swiss Romanche

Words derived from ancient Norman (Norse), Breton (Keltic), and English are indicated as N., K. and E. respectively.

Nouns ending in e are all feminine unless otherwise indicated.

To show the approximate pronunciation the following accents are used:—

à for a in at, ê and á for a in all and â for a in far

The endings in '-ant' and '-and' should be read as -ànt, -ànd, although these are pronounced -ènt in the Vale parish.

All endings in '-in' and '-ins' should be read as -ìn, -ìns.

č for tch; cq sounds k; l as in English.

ll as y except when final when it is mute

r is mute in word endings -er and -re

s is mute when final; ss is sounded

t is mute when final though there are exceptions, usually in Place Names.

u before another vowel is pronounced ou or w

û = u in prudent.
